1. The shipyard Stocznie Gdynskie, at Gdynia, is building a new slip to permit construction of larger vessels. At the present time the yard is engaged in correcting construction faults in a new type of coal and ore vessel known as the "Rudowstlowe type", which has been found to be very difficult to navigate in rough seas. The yard also makes trawlers for the navy.
2. Persons living in the interior of Poland must obtain permission from their district chairman in order to spend any time in the coastal area. They must report where they intend to travel, whom they intend to visit, their reasons for travel and the intended length of their stay; after their arrival in the coastal area they must report in person to the local control office, which is staffed by the U.B., to report the same type of information.
3. A Koniaja Lotna ("flying commission") has been organized to make speedy, unexpected raids on the homes of persons suspected by the government. Prison camps for persons arrested by the Koniaja Lotna are located at Zlotow (Platow) and at Grudziadz (Graudenz).
4. The C. Hartwig Company of Gdynia, a state transport company, has been involved in illegal reshipping of machinery which Poland imported for domestic use, and which the company has exported to non-Polish purchasers. Many persons have been arrested in connection with this case, and H. Gorodyski, [redacted] has been named director of the firm. It is planned that the C. Hartwig Company will be developed into Poland's largest export firm.
5. The civilian port guard system is being abandoned, and its functions have been delegated to the WOP (Wojskowa Ochrona Pogranicza) which is now subordinate to the Ministry of Security rather than to the Ministry of National Defense.
